

A letter from the President

Aims Community College is here for you...

Recently, we have all experienced the effects of an unstable economy and its impact on finances and jobs. It is undoubtedly a difficult time for so many of us. Nonetheless it is important that you know, with confidence, that Aims still offers stability during these shaky times. Stability for the community and for you... our students.

Aims continues to provide an incredibly high quality education at an incredibly affordable cost. In fact, for residents of our taxing district, Aims is the most affordable community college. Even for those students who are out of our district, our costs are competitive with other community colleges.

The College understands that students want a safe, pleasant and effective place to learn. Aims has dedicated resources to construct or renovate several buildings to offer the best in learning environments, along with the high tech tools to give our students a technological advantage. To ensure that the campuses remain as safe and secure as possible, Aims has partnered with the Weld County Sheriff's office to provide School Resource Officers on campus.

Great opportunities abound for students to take advantage of quality academic programs at Aims. Our highly qualified professors and advisors can guide students through courses that will tune up their job skills or transfer to any other public institution in Colorado. The College also has specialized programs for those individuals who may need some extra academic help to pursue an educational goal.

We are proud of our track record at Aims and proud to provide a vital service to our students. Our enrollment for the past two years has been on the increase and our commitment continues. Two new sites are scheduled for future facilities and expanded options for our students.

Aims continues its work to make the future brighter. Aims is here for you.

Dr. Marilynn "Marsi" Liddell
President

President