Work Environment and Physical Demands

Occupations often can be performed by those with disabilities when provided with appropriate adaptations.

- Indoors, in correctional facilities; or indoors and outdoors, depending on the nature of the work assignment.
- May be required to be "on call" and to work when emergencies arise.
- May confront situations that involve a risk of bodily injury; officers may be verbally harassed.
- Sometimes they use force during disturbances and emergencies.
- This may include using firearms, restraints, and batons.
- Most employees are required to work in rotating shifts which may include evening, weekend, and holiday.
- Officers follow grooming and dress codes; uniforms are provided by most employers.
- Officers may work alone or as part of a team.
- Computers are used to store and retrieve information.

To find adaptations used for specific disabilities, go to the Job Accommodation Network's Searchable Online Accommodation Resource (SOAR).
